Corns are very troublesome and are the result of too large, too small or ill-fitting shoes. When a corn has once been produced on a part, the part goes on producing it: it seems to have acquired a had habt to which it sticks well. Corns will sometime of the producing the seems to have acquired a had habt to which it sticks well. it to which it sticks well. Corns will some-times disappear by wearing well-fitting and easy shoes, but—they are usually trouble-some and very difficult to be gotten rid of. There is one species which may be picked out, and by avoiding the cause of their production, namely, tight boots or shoes, they may not return. This kind of treat-ment answers very well for round, hard corns, but there is another kind which are flat and considerably out; these cannot be treated in this way. The quickest relief to be had is by the use of a good sharp knife or razor.

Acetic acid, which is concentrated vine-Acetic acid, which is concentrated vine-gar, will sometimes effect a gradual remov-al of corns without making a sore place. The acid should be used every other day, wetting the corns carefully, and from time to time scraping away what is possible with the thumb or finger nall. Some times this is not successful, merely because the acid is not strong enough. The University furnishes instruction in the following Departments, viz: MILITARY, MEDICINE, LAW, PREPARATORY Text Books supplied to students at cost. one unacquainted with the nature of these things should ever attempt their use. Strong mineral acids burn the skin.

Soft corns are soaked corns. These grow between the toes, when these rub against their fellows, and which become soft in the condensed and accumulated perspiration of people who do not regularly and methodically keep their feet clean. Few people seem to realize the necessity of bathing the feet often. They need cleansing oftener than any other part clean. Tew people acceptance of the needs to feel. They need cleansing oftener than any other part of the body, not "twice a year," as we once heard an old farmer say he washed his. Frequent and liberal applications of soap and warm water will promote the health and tend to keep the feet free from corns and callous.

Some people are far more prone to the action of the skin which produces corns than others. The treatment in their case must be the same; only they must be more careful and more persevering in it. Nearly all persons have a corn on the outside of the little toe; these are caused by narrow boots or shoes; there is not room enough given to the little toe; its back is crooked up, hence the corn.

p, hence the corn. Soft corns may be relieved, if not cured Soft corns may be relieved, if not cared, by the application of a mixture of equal parts of alum and white of egg. Very often a piece of soft, dry lint or a very thin slice of sponge, interposed between the toes is all that is necessary for comfort.

A half of a lemon bound on a corn for several, successive nights will, in many cases, effect an entire cure. Repeated applications of glycerine or sweet oil will give relief. Another remedy is as follows: Put three or four common agate buttons in a small bottle, fill with strong vinegar; when the buttons are dissolved apply the mixture to the corn. Here is another:

"The step from this to the general replacement of gas is one, however, which I have not the least expectation of witnessing. The problem of carrying powerful currents of electricity for long distances, and of applying them in countless localities with economy, is one which (as I believe) calls, nof for the ingenious invention or combination of known properties only, but demands new properties of matter and new laws of electric force; and though it would be as foolish as unnecessary to say that anything short of perpetual motion may not be discovered, I feel very safe in acting on the opinion that the day of universal lighting by electricity will not come in my time."

The Coal Mines in Kansas.

The Coal Mines in Kansas.

Coal Trade Journal.

The Western country is fast being set teled, and the first need, almost, is fuel. In Linn, Bourbon, Crawford and Chero kee counties there is little use for timber, except for stock shelter, for nearly their entire area is underlaid with the famous Cherokee coal measures. The coal fields Cherokee coal measures. The coal fields of Bourbon, Crawford and Cherokee counties are among the richest in the whole Missouri Valley. Fort Scott and Cherokee coals are mined on a large scale and from the shafts and drilts of Carbon, Pittsburgh and other mining points, a hundred car loads are daily raised and shipped all over Kansas and Nebraska. With the rapid development of the vast non-coalbearing country to the west and north of these fields it ey will be more and more developed. The vensare from twenty inches to four feet in thickness and from outcroppings along the ravines and streams, to a depth of forty and sixty feet on the higher grounds are easily and cheaply worked by "drilting" and shafting, and, indeed, veryoften by "stripping" off the earth as a stone quarry is stripped. Their prospective value is vastly enhanced by their near relations to the great open prairie reigon west and north, wherein the fuel market is becoming almost unlimited. Right here at home, too, in the very midst of the coal fields, are the richest lead mines (only discovered last year), of Chorokee county, are already found to be richer than those of Galena and Mineral Point, while half a dozen miles beyond, just over the Missousi-line, are the famous Joplin lead mines, covering thirty square miles of territory.

Soak the feet well in hot water before going to bed; then pare down the corn, and after having just moistened it rub a little lunar caustic on the corn and just around the edge, until it turns light gray. By morning it will be black, and when the burnt skin peels off it will leave no vestige of the corn underneath. If it returns repeat the process.

If proper care and the use of these remedies do not avail, then a chiropodist must be consulted. Even he may not be able to effect a cure, but the relief afforded, from time to time, is a great comfort.

Inverted nails and enlarged joints often proceed from the same cause, namely, too short shoes. Indeed, the majority of ladies, to say nothing about gentlemen, wear to short shoes. The foot must have room according to its size, and if it is crowded in one place it will make room for itself in another. Enlarged joints are seldem if ever cured; they may be relieved by wearing larger shoes and by the use of plasters and liminent. Inverted nails, if not too bad, may be cured by cutting the nail square across the corners, not rounded like nail very thin and cut out a little three-cornered piece from the center. Sometimes a bit of lint or piece of oction crowded under the corner will give relief and prevent the nail from growing into the fiesh.

They can best prove that they are ladies by surpassing those who claim to be good servants.

Ease Attainable by the Rhenmatic. Yes, although they may despair of relief, it is attainable by rheumatic sufferers, for there is a remedy which casries off, by means of increased activity of the kidneys—important channels for blood purification—the acrid element to which pathologists the most eminent attribute the painful symptoms—a theory completely borne out by urinary analysis. The name of this grand depurent is Hostetter's Bitters, a preparation likewise celebrated as a remedy for constipation, which causes contamination of the hinod with the bile—and a certain means of relief in dyspepsus, fever and ague, and nervous aliments. It is, perhaps, the finest tonic extant, and is highly recommended as a medicinal stimulant by distinguished physicians and analysts who pronounce it to be eminently pure and beneficial. The press also endorses it. Ease Attainable by the Bhenmatic
